INVESTIGATE ELECTION LAWS

It is Thought that the Measure Will Be Passed by a Party Vote and a Partisan Committee Named by Speaker Henderson.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)
WASHINGTON. D. C., April 15.—The fact that there has been very little said recently in regard to the resolution offered by Repesentative Crumpacker, of Indiana, and reported favorably by the House Committee on Rules, to appoint a committee of thirteen members of the House to investigate the election laws of such States as they think need investigation, has caused the general belief that the matter has been dropped. Such is by no means the case.

This bill was placed by the Committee on Rules in the lands of General Grosvenor, of Ohio, who was instructed by that committee to report it to the House, and that foxy Republican is watching his epportunity to obey the committee's instructions.

it will be remembered that when this resolution was first introduced by Crumit will be remembered that that the resolution was first introduced by Crumpacker there was strong opposition to it among the Republican leaders, and it was thought that they would put a quietus on it early in the action. The Cuban reciprocity fight was on about that time, though, and from being viocity opposed to any reduction in the tariff. Crumpacker suddeuly declared that he would go with the party leaders and vote for twenty per cent. off. Shortly after this the Committee on Rules reported favorably the pet resolution of the Indiana Congressman.

It was then rumored quite freely that the leaders would go back on Crumpacker when the time came, and dispose of his resolution by having Speaker Hen-packer when the time came, and disposed in the resolution by having Speaker Henderson prevent its coming up in the liouse. The view at present is, however, that Crumpacker will be able to hold them in place, and that the bill will be allowed to come up.

WILL FIGHT TOOTH AND NAIL. WILL FIGHT TOOTH AND NAIL.

Whether or not k will pass is a question concerning which there is a marked difference of opinion at the Capitol. The Democrats are thoroughly watchful and alert, and are prepared to fight hard when the lime comes. Some of them think there will probably be pressure onough brought to bear by the Republican Senators, the majority of whom are against the resolution, to pevent its ever being brought up. Others are relying upon the chances that there will be a sufficiently large number of Republicans voting against the bill to help the Democrats to defeat it when it comes to a vote. The more experienced are of the opinion that it will be reported under a opinion that it will be reported under a special rule, and will be passed by a strictly party vote. Realizing the wonderful manner in which the Republicans whip into line at the last moment, those on the Democratic side of the House, who in the Democratic site of the Iranse, who have served several terms in Congress, think that after the usual family row the Republicans will, toward the end of the session, bring the matter up, move the previous question, shut off all debate and pass the resolution, A partisan committee will then be appointed and and pass the resolution, A partisan committee will then be appointed and the election laws of those States wherein the negro vote is a factor will be inves-
